Prerequisites

General entry requirements for university studies.

Objectives

After completing the course, the student should be able to:

- account for the conditions of film production in the global film industry,
- analyse the changes in film distribution and screening during the last two decades.

Content

This course discusses film in a production context. It discusses production conditions in the digital age, as well as the changes in film distribution and screening. The historical background forms the media revolution that film has experienced in the past few decades, which has resulted in a crisis for classical cinema film while other forms of screening have grown more significant. The course discusses the challenges facing today's film industry. Film festivals are also discussed as a form of distribution and as a production context.

Participation in seminars is compulsory.

Type of Instruction

Teaching is delivered in the form of lectures and seminars.

The teaching can also be distance-based and carried out on an online learning platform.

Examination

The course is assessed with the grades Fail (U), Pass (G) or Pass with Distinction (VG).

The course is examined through written assignments and active participation in seminars, in the form of presentations and well-prepared discussions.

In order to receive the grade of Pass, the student must achieve the objectives. Grading criteria for the grade of Pass with Distinction will be specified when the course starts.

For students who do not pass the first examinations, retake examinations are provided in accordance with local regulations at the university.

Course Evaluation

At the end of the course, a course evaluation is conducted. Results and analysis of the course evaluation are communicated to the students who have taken the course and the students who are taking the course when it is offered the next time. The evaluation is anonymous. The course evaluation is filed according to departmental regulations.
