Objectives

After completing the course, the student should be able to:

- describe the history and development of journalism, as well as the current media landscape,
- describe and give an overview of the conditions for and role of journalism and journalists in society,
- describe and compare different genres and formats of journalism,
- describe theories of and apply criteria for newsworthiness,
- evaluate journalism from a legislative and ethical point of view.

Content

The course gives a basic introduction to journalism, including theoretical, societal and professional aspects of the role and conditions of journalism. The course includes describing the history of journalism up until present time, as well as describing the current media landscape. It also includes describing the conditions for and role of journalism and journalists in society, as well as describing and comparing genres and formats of journalism, theories of newsworthiness, and criteria for assessing news. The course also includes the ethics of journalism.

Type of Instruction

Teaching is delivered in the form of lectures, seminars and exercises.

Examination

The course is assessed with the grades Fail (U), Pass (G) or Pass with Distinction (VG).

In order to receive the grade of Pass, the student must achieve the objectives. Grading criteria for the grade of Pass with Distinction will be specified in writing when the course starts.

The course is examined through a written examination, a written assignment and presentation, and submissions in connection with seminars.

If the university has decided that a student has the right to special educational support due to a disability, the examiner may offer an adapted test or allow the student to conduct the test in an alternative form.

For students who do not pass their first examinations, retake examinations are provided in accordance with Local regulations for courses and examinations at the first and second levels at Linnaeus University.

Course Evaluation

During or shortly after the course, a course evaluation is conducted. Results and analysis of the course evaluation are promptly communicated to the students who have taken the course. Students who are taking the course when it is offered the next time are informed of the results at the start of the course. The evaluation is anonymous.
