Content

Module 1: Approaching the text: Basic literary concepts and literary analysis (7.5 credits)

Why study literary history? What is an epoch? How is an interpretation justified? The module includes an introduction to literary history, terminology and concepts, and the students practise analysing dramatic, lyric and epic texts.

Module 2: Early literature until 1700: Honour, death, power (7.5 credits)

Literature is studied as a way to gain honour, conquer death and exercise power. Literature from the period is studied regarding aesthetics, genre, history of ideas and social aspects. The module focuses on Western literature. The literary-historical contexts are illustrated, and characteristics of individual texts are discussed.

Module 3: Early literature 1700–1830: Truth, freedom, individuality (7.5 credits)

Literature is viewed as wanting to educate and revolutionise in the tensions between sense and sensibility, reform and revolution, Europe and the world. Literature from the period is studied regarding aesthetics, genre, history of ideas and social aspects. The module focuses on Western and Swedish literature. The literary-historical contexts are illustrated, and characteristics of individual texts are discussed.

Module 4: Early literature 1830–1910: Reality, dreams, future (7.5 credits)

Literature is studied as a means of investigating reality and forming the future. Literature from the period is studied regarding aesthetics, genre, history of ideas and social aspects. The module focuses on Western and Swedish literature. The literary-historical contexts are illustrated, and characteristics of individual texts are discussed.

Module 5: New voices and perspectives, 7.5 credits

This module covers Swedish and foreign literature from the 20th and 21st centuries and focuses on a number of central shifts of perspective. New voices that take place are discussed as well as new ways of understanding literature as a reaction of the development of society and history. The module focuses on how the role of literature in society changes through literary theory and practice focusing on modernism, proletarian literature, feminism and ecocriticism.

Module 6: Non-European and post-colonial literature (7.5 credits)

This module has a global perspective, which means that it examines how literature has dealt with and been influenced by questions concerning colonialism and globalisation. The module includes a basic introduction to literary characteristics and forms as well as central themes and motives in primarily African, Asian, Caribbean, Latin American and Indian literature from the 20th century onwards. The literary-historical contexts are discussed briefly, which means that the module also discusses a few old, canonised texts.

Module 7: Intermediality (7.5 credits)

This module covers 20th-century literature from the perspective of intermediality, which means that the literature is related to, among other things, music, visual arts and film. The module also discusses genres related to traditional literature, such as musical lyrics, animated cartoons and Internet literature.

Module 8: Methods in comparative literature, including an essay (7.5 credits)

This module includes an introduction to methods and theories used in comparative literature, and the students practise writing academic reports. In connection to the writing of the essay, the students primarily practise their abilities to formulate research questions, conduct a coherent argument, apply scientific methods, write with accuracy, and use references correctly.

Type of Instruction

Teaching is delivered in the form of lectures, group discussions seminars and supervision. When the course is offered as an online distance course, special types of instruction suitable for that form of distribution are used.

Examination

The course is assessed with the grades Fail (U), Pass (G) or Pass with Distinction (VG).

In order to receive the grade of Pass, the student must achieve the objectives. Grading criteria for the grade of Pass with Distinction will be specified when the course starts. In order to receive the grade of Pass with Distinction, the student must have received the grade of Pass with Distinction for at least 37.5 credits.

Module 1 is examined through written assignments. Modules 2–7 are examined through group discussions, oral presentations and written examinations.

Module 8 is examined through oral and written assignments, the writing and defence of an essay and opposition of another student's essay.

The examination includes a visit to a literature event and a written review of this.

Repeat examination is offered in accordance with Local regulations for courses and examination at the first and second-cycle level at Linnaeus University. If the university has decided that a student is entitled to special pedagogical support due to a disability, the examiner has the right to give a customised exam or to have the student conduct the exam in an alternative way.

Course Evaluation

During the implementation of the course or in close conjunction with the course, a course evaluation is to be carried out. Results and analysis of the course evaluation are to be promptly presented as feedback to the students who have completed the course. Students who participate during the next course instance receive feedback at the start of the course. The course evaluation is to be carried out anonymously.
