Content

The course includes a systematic review of German morphology and syntax, with associated oral and written exercises. It furthermore includes lectures and seminars on the German-speaking countries' societies, history, culture, and literature.

Module 1: Grammar I, 7.5 credits

This module includes a review of basic German grammar and associated exercises, aiming to promote language proficiency. In addition, it discusses contrastive issues, comparing German with (above all) Swedish language structures. The module begins with an introduction to general grammar, which focuses on grammatical terminology and syntactic analysis in Swedish.

Module 2: Literature studies and oral communication, 7.5 credits

This module comprises two components:

Textual analysis, 4 credits

Modern fiction is studied from content, language, societal and literary points of view.

Oral language proficiency and pronunciation, 3.5 credits

Basic German pronunciation and intonation rules and basic phonetic concepts are introduced. Students practise their oral skills in free production.

Module 3: Social studies and writing, 7.5 credits

This module comprises two components:

Social studies, 3.5 credits

The German-speaking countries' history, geography, politics, and current societies are studied, along with their cultural historical development.

Translation, 4 credits

This component includes exercises in translation into German, continuously referring to the grammar module and building on grammatical knowledge and knowledge of words and phrases, acquired in the grammar module as well as in other modules.

Module 4: Introduction to language didactics, 7.5 credits

This module includes an introduction to theories of language acquisition and language teaching. Through a series of seminars, it furthermore deals with oral interaction, grammar and fiction in language teaching, strategies in language acquisition, and syllabi and policy documents. The subject tradition and the subject's function in school as well as in society is critically reviewed. The module furthermore includes field studies at a school.

Type of Instruction

Teaching is delivered in the form of lectures, seminars and group exercises. Module 4 is delivered in Swedish.

Examination

The course is assessed with the grades Fail (U), Pass (G) or Pass with Distinction (VG).

In order to receive the grade of Pass, the student must achieve the objectives. Grading criteria for the grade of Pass with Distinction will be specified in writing when the course starts.

If the university has decided that a student is entitled to special pedagogical support due to a disability, the examiner has the right to adapt the exam or to let the student conduct the exam in an alternative way.

Resit examination is offered in accordance with Local regulations for courses and examination at the first and second-cycle level at Linnaeus University.

Module 1: Grammar I, 7.5 credits. This module is examined through a written examination.

Module 2: Literature studies and oral communication, 7.5 credits. The component Textual analysis is examined through an oral examination. The component Oral language proficiency and pronunciation is examined through an oral examination.

Module 3: Social studies and writing, 7.5 credits. The component Social studies is examined through written assignments. The component Translation is examined through a written examination.

Module 4: Introduction to language didactics, 7.5 credits. This module is examined through oral discussions and presentations at the various seminars, as well as through a written assignment linked to the field study, and an oral presentation. Students who do not participate in one or several seminars get written make-up assignments determined by the examiner and communicated to the students by the relevant teacher. One or several seminars are compulsory, which means that the students must participate in order to obtain their credits. Compulsory seminars are specified in the schedule.

Course Evaluation

During or shortly after the course, a course evaluation should be conducted. The result and analysis of the course evaluation should be promptly communicated to the students who have taken the course. Students who are taking the course when it is offered the next time should be informed of the result at the course introduction. The course evaluation is anonymous.
