Revised 2024-02-15. Minor adjustments in objectives, content and required reading.

The course syllabus is valid from autumn semester 2024.

Prerequisites

General entry requirements and civics 1b or 1a1+1a2, English 6, and German 3 (or German for beginners, 30 credits in total), or the equivalent.

Objectives

The course is comprised of four modules.

After completing the course, the student should be able to:

Module 1: Grammar I, 7.5 credits

- explain basic grammatical terminology,
- describe and use basic German morphology and syntax.

Module 2: Literature studies and oral communication, 7.5 credits

- interact in German in different communicative contexts and demonstrate an ability to hold conversations, argue, and give short presentations in German,
- use basic rules for German pronunciation and intonation,
- discuss and analyse German literature in German, in terms of language, content, and structure.

Module 3: Social studies and writing, 7.5 credits

- describe the German-speaking countries' history, geography, politics, and current societal conditions,
- translate simple texts into German and conduct systematically structured translation exercises dealing with contrastive grammatical issues.

Module 4: Introduction to language didactics, 7.5 credits

- present and use language teaching and language acquisition theories and concepts,
- discuss language-didactic theories and connect them to teaching practice,
- demonstrate communicative proficiency in speech and writing.

Content

The course includes a systematic presentation of German morphology and syntax, including oral and written exercises. It furthermore includes lectures and seminars on the German-speaking countries' societies, history, culture, and literature. The didactic profile course provides a basis for professional practice as a German teacher.

Module 1: Grammar I, 7.5 credits

This module includes a presentation of basic German grammar, including exercises aiming to promote language proficiency. In addition to this, it discusses contrastive issues, comparing German and (above all) Swedish language structures. The module begins with an introduction to general grammar, which focuses on grammatical terminology and syntactic analysis in Swedish.

Module 2: Literature studies and oral communication, 7.5 credits

This module comprises two submodules:

Textual analysis I, 4 credits

Modern fiction is studied in terms of content, language, societal aspects, and literary aspects.

Oral language proficiency and pronunciation, 3.5 credits

Basic German pronunciation and intonation rules and basic phonetic concepts are introduced. Students practise their oral skills in free production.

Module 3: Social studies and writing, 7.5 credits

This module comprises two submodules:

Social studies, 3.5 credits

The German-speaking countries' history, geography, politics, and current societal conditions are studied, along with their cultural historical development.

Translation I, 4 credits

This submodule includes exercises in translation into German, continuously referring to the grammar module and building on grammatical knowledge and knowledge of words and phrases, acquired in the grammar module as well as in other modules.

Module 4: Introduction to language didactics, 7.5 credits

This module includes an introduction to theories of language acquisition and language teaching. Central themes and questions for modern language teaching are discussed and related to methodological ideas for teaching. The subject of modern languages – its tradition and function in school and society – is critically reviewed. The module furthermore includes a field study at a school, in order to provide insights into the profession that the course prepares for.

Professional, subject-didactic, and scientific progression

Modules 1–3 focus on developing subject knowledge for a professional career as a teacher of German. As for scientific progression, basic skills in textual analysis are practised, focusing on literary analysis and the ability to discuss theory in relation to professional practice. A scientific approach is practised in the written exam assignment, which should adhere to conventions for academic writing at a basic level.

Professional development is closely linked to subject-didactic development.

Fundamental theories and central issues in language acquisition and language teaching are discussed in relation to ideas for teaching. The students gain experiences during school visits, which are subsequently discussed in the group, and which serve as the basis for a written assignment.

Type of Instruction

Teaching is delivered in the form of lectures, seminars and group exercises. Module 4 is delivered in Swedish and includes field studies.

Examination

The course is assessed with the grades Fail (U), Pass (G) or Pass with Distinction (VG).

In order to receive the grade of Pass, the student must achieve the objectives. Grading criteria for the grade of Pass with Distinction will be specified in writing when the course starts. In order to receive a Pass with Distinction, the student must have received this grade for at least 22 of 30 credits, including the modules Grammar I, 7.5 credits, and Oral language proficiency and pronunciation, 3.5 credits.

If the university has decided that a student is entitled to special pedagogical support due to a disability, the examiner has the right to adapt the exam or to let the student conduct the exam in an alternative way.

Module 1: Grammar I, 7.5 credits. This module is examined through a written examination.

Module 2: Literature studies and oral communication, 7.5 credits. The submodule Textual analysis, 4 credits, is examined through an oral examination and the submodule Oral language proficiency and pronunciation, 3.5 credits, is examined through an oral examination.

Module 3: Social studies and writing, 7.5 credits. The component Social studies, 3.5

credits, is examined through written assignments and the component Translation I, 4 credits, is examined through a written examination.

Module 4, Language didactics (7.5 credits), is examined through written contributions to different seminar and forum discussions; through a written project linked to the field study; and through an oral presentation.

Resit examination is offered in accordance with Local regulations for courses and examination at the first and second-cycle level at Linnaeus University.

Course Evaluation

Course evaluation should be conducted during or shortly after the course. Its results and analysis should be promptly communicated to the students who have taken the course. Students participating in the next course instance should be informed of the results of the previous course evaluation and any improvements that have been made, no later than at the start of the course.

Overlap

The course cannot be included in a degree along with the following course/courses of which the content fully, or partly, corresponds to the content of this course: 1TYÄ02 (30 credits), 1TY120 (30 credits), 1TY100 (22.5 credits, all modules except EU studies and intercultural communication), 1TY101 (22.5 credits, all modules except EU studies and intercultural communication)

Other Information

The course constitutes the first semester of German studies in the teacher training programme for secondary school.
