Prerequisites

1FRÄ02 French I – French for upper secondary school teachers and 1FRÄ04 French II – for upper secondary school teachers.

Objectives

Intended learning outcomes for the course as a whole

After completing the module, the students should be able to:

- use the French language correctly and in a varied way, in both speech and writing,
- problematise teachers' work in relation to research in the subject and its didactics,
- on the basis of current research assess subject-didactic positions in relation to the areas covered by the programme.

Module 1

After completing the module, the students should be able to:

- demonstrate in-depth knowledge and insights into French grammar and language structure,
- apply this knowledge in order to express themselves correctly in French in speech and writing.

Module 2

After completing the module, the students should be able to:

- analyse literature from French-speaking parts of the world,
- account for general literary theory with particular focus on post-colonial theory,
- account for the culture and history of the former French colonies.

Content

Main content of the course

The course covers French grammar and language structure and French literature from different parts of the world.

Scientific approach and progression

Scientific publications are included in the course literature and the texts and their scientific foundations are problematised in the teaching in both modules. This means that the students are given the opportunity to develop their independent critical perspective in both scientific and professional areas.

Professional basis

The professional basis is developed in the two modules as the students' language proficiency develops, which leads the students to becoming more confident in using French as their teaching language. The professional basis is also developed through discussions of subject-didactic issues.

The course consists of two modules:

Module 1 Language proficiency and grammar 7.5 credits

The module consists of two parts:

Grammar (3 credits)

This module includes a general introduction to French linguistics and discusses some linguistic theories. The module covers the grammatical structure of French, with a special focus on differences in sentence structure between Swedish and French. All sessions marked as seminars in the schedule are compulsory.

Language proficiency (4.5 credits)

By translating texts from Swedish to French, the students practise their ability to express themselves in correct spoken and written French, with special regard to grammar (morphology and syntax), but also to vocabulary and style.

The texts for translation are collected from different genres (fiction and non-fiction). All sessions marked as seminars in the schedule are compulsory.

Module 2 Literature from the French-speaking world 7.5 credits

The course provides an introduction to modern literature from French-speaking parts of the world. Texts which illustrate French literature from different French-speaking countries or regions are read and analysed on the basis of different literary theories. This literature is also discussed with regards to social and political events. All sessions marked as seminars in the schedule are compulsory.

Type of Instruction

Teaching is delivered in the form of lectures, seminars and exercises.

Examination

The course is assessed with the grades Fail (F), Pass (G) or Pass with Distinction

(VG).

In order to receive the grade of Pass, the student must achieve the intended learning outcomes. In order to receive the grade of Pass with Distinction, the student must have received the grade of Pass with Distinction for at least 10.5 of 15 credits.

For students who do not pass the first examination, four retake examinations are provided.

Module 1 is examined through continuous written assignments on theory and grammar as well as a written examination on language proficiency at the end of the course.

Module 2 is examined through a short essay and an oral presentation.

Course Evaluation

At the end of the course, a course evaluation is conducted and compiled into a report, which is made available to students. The report is presented to departmental bodies and the program advisory board concerned, and is archived by the department responsible for the course.
