Prerequisites

A bachelor's degree in a main field of study within the humanities or the social sciences or the equivalent, or

A Degree of Master of Arts in Secondary Education specialising in music or the equivalent, and English 6.

Objectives

After completing the course, the student should be able to

- account for, problematise and critically discuss conceptions of music and ideas about the world being global, preferably from the 19th century until today
- account for relevant theoretical perspectives on music and globalisation, based on current research
- critically analyse how the meaning of music is affected by the global networks through which it is spread
- independently conduct and present a small case study on music in global networks.

Content

- Local music scenes and transnational contacts, preferably from the 19th century until today.
- Theoretical perspectives and concepts from current research on music and globalisation.
- Implementation of a small case study on music in global networks, chosen in consultation with the examiner.

Type of Instruction

The course is based on students' active participation. Teaching is delivered in the form of lectures and seminars. A major part of the course consists of individual studies.

Examination

The course is assessed with the grades A, B, C, D, E, Fx or F.

The course is examined through oral seminar assignments and a written presentation of the case study. The examination as a whole and its credits are valid only when all component parts are completed.

The grade of A is the highest grade, and the grade of E is the lowest grade for passing the course. The grade of F means that the student has failed. Grading criteria for A–F are communicated to the students in writing when the course starts.

Resit examination is offered in accordance with Local regulations for courses and examination at the first and second-cycle level at Linnaeus University. If the university has decided that a student is entitled to special pedagogical support due to a disability, the examiner has the right to adapt the exam or to let the student conduct the exam in an alternative way.

Course Evaluation

During or shortly after the course, a course evaluation should be conducted. The result and analysis of the course evaluation should be promptly communicated to the students who have taken the course. Students who are taking the course when it is offered the next time should be informed of the result at the course introduction. The course evaluation is anonymous.
